

Re: Lamentations (A Monument to a Dead World)

* Elder's Epic: Bruce Elder, one of Canada's leading experimental film-makers, has just finished his latest magnum opus. Titled Lamentations - A Monument For The Dead World, its running time is a hefty eight hours. Don't expect to see it on prime-time TV just yet.

Says Bruce, "It represents the consciousness of a man who stands at the end of time and who surveys the flotsam left behind by the historical process."

The film will be screened this fall at the Art Gallery of Ontario, which is mounting a full retrospective of Elder's work from Oct. 1 to 11. Elder is only the third film-maker to be so honored by the gallery. The others are Michael Snow and Jean-Pierre Lefebvre.
